

Postcard from my teacher

Dear Oak,

It seems to have turned a bit rainy this week which is actually very good news for our gardens and for the new grass that is being laid as turf at school, but less good for us humans as we feel trapped inside. I have to say that my household ignored the (heavy) rain and went to the Runnymede Memorial on Monday evening to celebrate 805 years since the sealing of Magna Carta and to celebrate the life of a great friend who came to talk to all of the children at Datchet St Mary's in 2015 on the 800th anniversary of Magna Carta. Do you remember him? His name was Justin and he loved talking to our children about history.

I have finally treated myself to a new watch as I really was so fed up with not being able to see the time on my Fitbit when we were outside. The good news is that the new watch has a calculator on it, so I can quickly check any tricky calculations in maths!

Lottie is in a very grumpy mood today and is refusing to pose for any photos - she hates the rain - so I am cheering her up with some Dreamies. What food treats do you like on rainy days?

Take care of yourselves and those around you.

Love from Mrs Phillips
