Dear Bonsai,

I hope you are all well and have had a great week. Unfortunately the weather has not been quite so nice this week – Oliver and I were actually quite shocked to see a hail storm yesterday! He was very excited by it too and imagined there were weather monsters in the clouds that very cold and sad, and the hail was their tears. Hopefully they will cheer up soon and give us our lovely sunshine back.

I am still attempting to bake things at home when we have the time. I made a banana and coconut loaf which tasted lovely, but I think Miss Green would have baked it better – she's amazing at making cakes and sweet treats!

I wonder if you are having phone or video chats with your friends and family at the moment? We certainly are – I've actually been talking to some old school friends I haven't spoken to in ages, and it's actually been great to use this time to do things that often get put off when life is usually busy

Our Family movie was the Disney film Inside Out, again we really enjoyed it, wouldn't be funny if the way we thought was actually controlled by little characters in our heads?

Anyway, please all take care of yourselves, and I will catch up again next week. From Mrs Walter
