

Postcard from my teacher

Dear Bonsai,

How wonderful that the beautiful weather is back with us, and continuing for at least a couple more days.

Hopefully you've seen that Friday 8th is 75th anniversary of VE day, when WW 2 was officially declared over in Europe! There are some fantastic resources on the internet, including seeing old footage of the celebrations, and famous speeches given by Prime Minister Winston Churchill – why not spend a bit of time having a look at them as it gives you a real flavour of the joy and relief felt by all the people who were affected by the war. I, and my family, shall be wearing red, white and blue and having a little picnic in our garden to celebrate the day.

Last weekend we did our family movie night again, this time it was Shazam! If you were a superhero what special power would you chose? I can't decide 😊

I do hope you're a well, and are enjoying the Brazil project – I wonder what interesting facts you've discovered about the country? I'll write again soon,
